Funding Slows, Yet Need Continues

It's great to hear good economic news: In March, the stock market soared to pre-2007 levels, and corporate coffers were overflowing with profits.

But the recession isn't over for more families, children and seniors than ever in Southwest Florida, due to continuing unemployment and underemployment, and decreased state funding of food support programs.

"The need has leveled off, but much higher than pre-recession," said Al Brislain, President and CEO of the Harry Chapin Food Bank.

The numbers tell the story. In FY2007-08, the Food Bank sourced and distributed 4 million pounds food. That more than doubled to 9.6 million pounds 2009-10, and soared again to 15 million pounds in 2011-12.

Fully one-third of the food that the Food Bank now collects from its store pick-up program — 52,000 pounds a week from 160 stores, and much of its fresh produce and meats — wouldn't come in without a growing fleet of trucks funded by individual and corporate donations.

Ellie and Walt Goff are so generous as donors and volunteers because the Food Bank has one simple goal — to feed hungry people. "It's been amazing to see how the food distribution has grown since we started 12 years ago," said Walt, former owner of a grocery store chain in Michigan, and Ellie, a former home economics teacher. They especially noted the meats, baked goods and fresh produce the Food Bank can now handle.

"It's gratifying that the community has responded to their neighbors and friends, who have lost their jobs and houses and are going through tough times," said Brislain.

With children and seniors representing more than half of those at risk of hunger, however, the Food Bank remains more important than ever.

Hunger Walk A 'Huge' Success!

The 5th Annual WINK News Feeds Families Hunger Walk hit a new high with $340,000 in pledges for the Harry Chapin Food Bank, including a "huge" $50,000 match from Billy Fuccillo, owner of Fuccillo Kia of Cape Coral. That's $30,000 more than last year! The January walk was also the biggest ever, with almost 1,000 participants, 116 teams (including 29 from agency partners of the Food Bank), and $81,250 in sponsorship donations.

Thanks go to everyone — donors, walkers, sponsors, volunteers, families and friends! (See inside pages 2A and 2B)

Message from the Board Chair...

As I enter into the final months of a rewarding five-year term, I reflect on all that we have been able to accomplish because of your caring and generous support. The positive impact you have had on the lives of so many is hard to put on a fact sheet or even express in words.

Visualize...what it is like to "not" have to deny your kids food so that you can pay for gas to go to work the next day... that you and your family do "not" have to go to bed on an empty stomach and "not" wake up to a kitchen lacking of food...that the elderly couple down the street need "not" face each other with empty plates... that fresh fruits and vegetables "are" the answer to "What's for dinner?"

These visions are becoming a reality for many because of your support, but don't stop now! Let's visualize a day when every child, every senior, every human being has met the basic need for food. How can you "not" help, if you can?

Welcome Rev. Campbell to Food Bank Board

If you want something done, goes the adage, ask the busiest person in the room. That will surely be Rev. Stephanie Munz Campbell, the newest member of the Harry Chapin Food Bank board of directors.

Under her leadership as founder and executive director, Grace Place for Children and Families reaches many of the most vulnerable and underserved within Golden Gate City.

The agency's primary mission is education — teaching literacy, language and life skills to 500 children and 300 adults every week. But they can't concentrate on learning when food is scarce, so in 2008 Grace Place opened its food pantry. In 2012, it provided emergency groceries to 29,183 individuals in 1,538 households.

"I'm so impressed with the work of the Food Bank," she said. "Particularly during the recession, I saw them expand what they have to offer — especially fresh foods — and work closely with partner agencies so each could do their job better."

Food Bank Programs and Warehouse Expand Their Reach in Collier County

The Food Bank's Collier County warehouse is a beehive of activity.

Three new refrigerators, with more than 500 square feet, will enable the Food Bank to move 400,000 pounds of food through June 30, the end of this fiscal year, and 1.5 million pounds of food next fiscal year.

This new distribution point is helping the Food Bank expand activities throughout the county. A second school pantry (at Avalon Elementary in East Naples) opened in January. Avalon's sponsor is North Naples United Methodist Church. "The response has been fantastic," said Katie Schweikhardt, Collier County Food Coordinator and Director of Programs. "In early March, the pantry served more than 100 families."

Twice-a-week mobile distributions are continuing at local elementary schools. Since these began less than two years ago, the Food Bank has delivered 2 million pounds of food, "an amazing milestone," Schweikhardt noted. About 350 families can be fed by each mobile distribution.

Valentine's Day Turns Into 'Thank-you-a-thon'

This year, Valentine's Day for the Harry Chapin Food Bank was all about saying "thank you."

Over almost six hours, eight volunteers and five board members personally called 233 donors to thank them for their generous giving.

John Kuhn (pictured above), senior director of business development for the Fort Myers Miracle hatched the idea. He had participated in a similar program by the Children's Miracle Network and Sanford Hospital when he ran a minor league ball club in Sioux Falls, S.D. "We did phone-a-thons all the time, and I thought the 'thank-you-a-thon' was really cool."

In January alone, volunteers gave 2,778 hours of service to the Food Bank and sorted 1.036 million pounds of food. You can volunteer, too! Call Bedzaida Bryen at 334-7007 x141.

Charlotte Organizations Launch 'Food Connection'

The Harry Chapin Food Bank, Charlotte Community Foundation, United Way of Charlotte County, Laishley Group and several leading emergency food programs have formed a working committee called "The Food Connection." Together, they will focus on strategies to more effectively and efficiently expand food resources within Charlotte County. A first action is to document the growing number of people needing food assistance in the county.

Spring 2013

Special Partnership For Charitable Gift Annuities

Here's one way to set up a legacy for the Harry Chapin Food Bank and still benefit during your lifetime.

The charitable gift annuity is one of the most popular types of planned gifts due to its simplicity, attractive rates and guaranteed fixed payments over the lifetime of the annuity beneficiary (annuitant). Now it's being made available through a partnership of two highly respected local organizations.

In a simple contract between a donor and the Southwest Florida Community Foundation, the donor transfers an asset to the foundation in exchange for a fixed, guaranteed payment for life. Payout rates for gift annuities are based on the age of the annuitant(s) at the time payments begin — the higher the age, the higher the payout rate. At the death of the final annuitant, the balance goes to the Harry Chapin Food Bank endowment fund at the community foundation. For more information, please call Tom Brown at (239) 334-7007 x124.
